NUMBER 148

Hancock was nominated with a shout—and the shouters are now taking to the woods.

It now looks as if the Confederates will run the campaign in the North for the Democrats.

The genuine Democratic creed is the principle for which Lee and Jackson fought four years.

It will be interesting to our readers to know that geological science makes out that the world is 60 million years of age.

If it wasn't for the enlightened wisdom of the Northern people, the Democrats would have a fair show for success this fall.

The fact that the country is prosperous, our workmen earning fair wages, and our industries thriving, is an argument for Garfield.

It is pretty slow and discouraging work for the Democrats to attack the prosperity of the country with their batteries of soft soap.

The chief business of the Democrats this fall will be to put in their denials. This will make the campaign a dreary one for the Democratic party.

It is an advantage to the Democratic managers that there are so many people in the North who can read, and when they read, remember. This makes their campaign uphill work.

Mr. Thomas Nast argues in a very spirited cartoon in this week's Harper's, that if Dr. Tanner's statement is true, that starvation is only a delusion of the brain, it is not necessary for the Democrats to have a change.

Mr. Tilden is rolling in clover this campaign. He sits on his barrel head, and smiles child-like and bland at the perplexed condition of Hancock and the Democratic party. This is the time Sam is going to get straight with the managers of the Cincinnati convention.

The total income for public schools in all the States and Territories in the Union, amounted to $6 million dollars in 1879, and the income for the public schools of the South reached only $8 millions. Is this one of the reasons why the South should dominate in this government?

The last report of the Comptroller of the currency shows that during the six months ending May 31, 1878, the deposits in savings banks in the United States amounted to $78 million dollars, and surprising as it may seem, not more than two and a half millions of that vast amount were deposited in the South.

The business men of the country are this year asking themselves this solemn question: "How would the success of the Democratic party at the approaching Presidential election effect the commercial and industrial interests of the country?" The answer is irresistible, that it would destroy, or materially cripple, the commerce and the manufactures of the United States.

It has been a custom for many years in the South to carry deadly and concealed weapons. This has resulted in very many murders which would not have otherwise been committed. This fact has become so apparent that a strong effort is now being made in South Carolina and Georgia to stop the practice, and the movement is receiving the warm support of many agents and leading citizens of the South.

General Garfield's speeches are models of elegance and propriety. General Hancock is not so fortunate in his utterances, for he rarely opens his mouth that he doesn't put his foot in it. Recently a delegation of independent generals called upon him and in a short address to them he presented this sentiment: "The American is happy when he can vote; the German is happy when he need not vote." The justification of General Hancock that the Germans do not take sufficient interest in their adopted country to go to the polls, has caused a big commotion among our German citizens, and their papers are full of discussions as to what General Hancock meant, and few of them seem to put a charitable construction on the remark.

It is not unlikely that General Walker, Superintendent of the Census, will order a re-enumeration of the inhabitants in some portions of the South. That there have been gross frauds, there is no manner of doubt. Delapidated villages and sparsely settled agricultural districts have been made to increase immensely in population under the peculiar mode of counting in the South. General Walker has carefully examined the postal cards which the regulations required each enumerator to send to the department daily, giving the number of persons enumerated each day, and the number reported by many of the census takers was by far greater than could have been possible to take in the districts in which they were working. This is one of the chief evidences of fraud, and will go a great way to lead Superintendent Walker to order the census taken in these districts. Probably under the circumstances the government can not prevent the stuffing of the ballot box in the South, but it can prevent the stuffing of the census.

It is stated that Senator Conning will make a few speeches in Indiana, and that Senator Thurman will follow in his tracks to neutralize Mr. Conkling's efforts. It is further stated that Republican speakers are to be followed about by Democratic orators over the entire State in the same manner. This is a system of strategy which is monopolized by the Democratic party. Being destitute of all principle, and having no issues which it dares advocate openly before the people, it pursues the cowardly and bushwhacking method of following at a safe distance in the rear, and striking its opponent in the back. Instead of meeting its adversary on open ground in a fair encounter, it chooses the guerrilla system of warfare and seeks to accomplish by stealth what it has not the courage to undertake on equal terms. This is a specimen of average Democratic "shrewdness." His chief weapon is to use the mistakes of the Republican party to the injury of the latter. This cowardly motive always compels the Democratic party to be following the Republican party. No National Democratic convention has been held before the Republican convention since 1846. The mind of man hardly runs back to the time when the Republicans of Wisconsin have not held their State convention before the Democrats. In Rock county the same rule holds, and even in the city of Janesville the Democrats never nominate a Mayor or an Assemblyman without waiting to see if their opponents do not make some sort of a mistake which they can use.

The Democratic party is the same country over—not having convictions it is a party of cowards, and not having principles it is continually sneaking and skulking in the rear.

The Democratic idea of "statesmanship" is decidedly unique. The writers and orators of that party lauded the "statesmanship" of McClellan solely because, after his army was driven back in wild confusion from before Richmond, he seated himself on the poop of a man-of-war, in the shadow of the smoke-stack and wrote four columns of advice to President Lincoln as to the manner in which the war should be conducted "constitutionally." Later, the comprehensive "statesmanship" of Horace Greeley was admired and magnified by the Democratic enthusiasts, not for anything he had done for the cause of human liberty—but not even because he once published in his paper a poem on the American Flag beginning,

"Tear Down that flaunting Lie," but because he signed the bail-bond of Jefferson Davis. And now there is another Democratic Presidential candidate who has unexpectedly to the Nation and to himself, been discovered to be ramified, saturated and impregnated with "statesmanship" because he once issued a military order to the effect that the military must be subordinate to the civil power, which order he himself violated in less than a week after it was published. In short, "statesmanship" from a Democratic standpoint, is an easily acquired characteristic which every one can readily possess.

The Democratic managers are perspiring freely in the effort to extricate Wade Hampton from the bog he fell into when he delivered his Staunton speech. In one paper he was reported to have said:

Consider what Lee and Jackson would do were they alive. These are the same principles that we hold dear, for we are the same men who poured forth their life blood on Virginia's soil, and do not abandon them now, remember that upon your vote depends the success of the Democratic ticket.

This evocation of Democratic principles was a little too brash for the Northern Democrats. While they could not deny that the principles of Lee and Jackson were the same as those of the Democratic party to-day, yet Hampton was altogether too caudal and honest for his Northern political friends, and lest the first report of his speech might hurt the party in the North, he was induced to deny having uttered the words ascribed to him. The Democratic paper at Staunton, a paper exceedingly friendly to Hampton, made a correction and printed his remarks in this shape:

Please excuse me for casting your vote. Think how Lee would have voted. Think what Jackson would have done before he would have cast a vote. I am not a statesman, but a soldier, and the men who pour forth their life blood on Virginia's soil, and do not abandon them now, remember that upon your vote depends the success of the Democratic ticket.

But this proved no better than a jump from the frying-pan into the fire. The sentiment was the same, and the words almost identical. But the first report of his concession speech must stand as first printed, for the best Democrats in Staunton—men who have no motive to do Wade Hampton wrong—have testified that the first paragraph contains his exact words. As a campaign orator Hampton is causing the Democrats some trouble. He is too sincere and honest for the stump. The Democrats want him to put on the Hancock mask, appear one thing but another, but that is hardly Hampton's style.

Col. W. P. Read, a prominent coal merchant of Chicago, and a representative Irishman of that city, has decided to quit the Democratic party, and will hereafter act with the Republicans. When asked for reasons which caused him to take this step, he said: "In the past I have not been actively engaged in political matters, not aspiring to any office, and my business being of such a character as to engage all my time, I have not wanted any office and don't want any now. In short I never expect to run for office. But I feel that it is a serious question for every citizen, and especially for every business man, to determine correctly as to how he shall cast his vote during the coming election. In common with the Irishmen in this com-try I have voted the Democratic ticket. But, on reflection, I see no logical reason why I should do so any longer. On the other hand there are several important reasons why I feel it my duty to vote with the Republican party. The object of these is that I consider the fundamental principles of that party as true. It has been the party of freedom and progress; it enfranchised a down-trodden race; it preserved the Union; it is the party of intelligence and enlightenment; and for these and other reasons it is deserving of support. Unfortunately the Irish people of this country have voted the Democratic ticket and against the interests of a suffering and down-trodden race."

Colonel Read's prominence in the business circles of Chicago, and his reputation for integrity and candor, give him a large influence among his countrymen, and his determination to abandon the Democratic party and to support Garfield and Arthur, will lead many others to follow his example. It is a fact worthy of note that thousands of Irishmen who have heretofore voted the Democratic ticket are boldly declaring for Garfield. They begin to see that the Democratic party and its platform seek to ruin some of the most important industries of the country, which means nothing less than bringing the American laborer on a footing with the pauperized laborer of Europe.

GRANT'S SPEECH.

The Great General Declares for the Republican Ticket at Galena.

GALENA, Aug. 27.—A large and enthusiastic meeting was held at Turner Hall this evening under the auspices of the Garfield and Arthur Club. At 8 o'clock the meeting was called to order by J. Fawcett, President of the Club, who introduced the Rev. E. F. L. Glass, who has been engaged by the State Central Committee to speak during the campaign. Mr. Glass made a fifteen minutes' address, replete with patriotic sentiments and true Republicanism. The reverend gentleman is an eloquent and effective speaker and will render valuable service to the Garfield and Arthur cause during the campaign. At the conclusion of his remarks, the Hon. Philo A. Orton of Darlington, was introduced, and gave his matchless speech he delivered the history of the two great parties, and gave his reasons for leaving the ranks of the Democratic party and entering under the banner of Garfield and Arthur. Your correspondent will not attempt a synopsis of Judge Orton's speech. Suffice it to say that it was one of the most patriotic and eloquent efforts we have ever had the pleasure of listening to and cannot fail of doing great good in this city. The Judge was frequently interrupted by applause, and his peroration at the close roused the enthusiasm of the audience to the highest pitch.

At the close of the speech, General Grant, who occupied a seat on the stage, was loudly called for, and in response spoke as follows:

"LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: I did not intend to speak when I came here to-night. I am very much like Judge Orton—I have never made a Republican speech in my life, on any kind of a political speech. I am sure it would require some time and much preparation to make one of any length. I can, of course, go a little further than Judge Orton, and say that I never voted a Republican Presidential ticket in my life, and but one Democratic ticket, and that was many years ago, when I was quite young man; but I will pledge you my word here to-night that if I am spared, although I shall be some distance from you on the second of November, I shall return to Galena to cast my one Republican vote for President of the United States, and I hope the city of Galena will cast a round 'Repub' can vote such as it never cast here before." [Great applause.]

Col. W. P. Read, a prominent coal merchant of Chicago, and a representative Irishman of that city, has decided to quit the Democratic party, and will hereafter act with the Republicans. When asked for reasons which caused him to take this step, he said: "In the past I have not been actively engaged in political matters, not aspiring to any office, and my business being of such a character as to engage all my time, I have not wanted any office and don't want any now. ARKANSAS.

More About the Terrorism in Arkansas.

LITTLE ROCK, Aug. 27.—The Helena Freeman, a Democratic paper of recent date, editorially commenting on the attempt of the Repub'cans to reorganize their party in Phillips county, says, "The man who thinks he can lead an opposition against the organized Democracy of Phillips county is not only presumptuous, but extremely bold. He will require a body guard equal to the whole number of voters in the Democratic ranks, and a Gibraltar in his rear where in 1878, the Democrat made the census with 60 mounted riflemen and two pieces of artillery. The county has a Republican majority of 2,500, and, having faith in the Democratic promises of a free school and a fair count, the Republican leaders want to reorganize and win the state. The above is an indication of what they may expect if this attempt is persisted in. The Hot Springs Telegraph of the 25th flies a confederate flag at the head of its column giving notice of a Hancock and English rally."

CHEATED THE GALLows.

Roland Rucker Escapes the Gallows by Opening an Artery in His Arm.

PALESTINE, Texas, Aug. 27.—Great excitement has been caused here by the announcement that Roland Rucker, who was to have been hanged here to-day for the murder of R. P. Grayson and wife, when the prison authorities visited his cell, at 5 o'clock this morning, was found in the last agonies of death. Near him was a large pool of blood, and blood was leaking from a wound in his left wrist, which he had made with a penknife. On examination it was found the artery had been severed. How Rucker got possession of the knife is a mystery.

THE FASTEST YET.

HARTFORD, Aug. 27.—St. Julian started here to-day, against the time 2:11 1/4 made by him and Maud S. at Rochester. The day and track were won. Hickok took the middle of the track, and reached the quarter in 32 1/2; the half in 1:35; the three-quarters in 1:37 1/2, and passed under the wire in the unprecedented time of 2:11 1/4. There was great excitement when the record was announced.

ANOTHER ARREST.

ELKHORN, Aug. 27.—Cornelius Doraty, of the town of Walworth, was jailed here last night charged with the murder of Jacob Blackwell, of that town, on Tuesday night; his examination with that of George Violett, whose arrest is reported in the Times of today, being postponed to await further investigation.

MARY JEWETT.

The Girl Who Can Ride a Horse Twenty Miles an Hour.

From the St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Just four miles from Littlefield, on the St. Paul Minneapolis & Manitoba Rail way, is the farm of Mr. Jewett, the father of the young girl who has accepted the challenge of Mrs. Bell of California, to ride the twenty-mile race at the coming Minneapolis Exposition. This is to be one of the great events of the year in racing circles, partly because of the heavy stakes ($3,000) pending, but more because it marks a new era in sporting circles, and starts anew inclinations throughout the women of the day to exceed their unequalled rivals.

I found Miss Jewett at the home of her father, busily engaged in the household duties common to the female members of the better class of former homes. Miss Jewett is a peerless of Minnesota, physically and mentally. Imagine a woman of 20, average height, of beauty, tall and slender, dressed in modesty in appearance, and at the same time with a demeanor of perfect courage, self-posse and self-possession. She has light brown hair, blue eyes, and a cheerful, honest, winning manner. Handsome according to nature's recognized standard, with the touches of sun upon her cheek and the color of the cherry on her lips—a woman whom would be marked "attractive" in any community and with any surroundings.

She met me cordially, and was eager to learn if I knew anything of her companion, Mrs. Cook, of California. With but little persuasion she was induced to give me a specimen of her skill as a horsewoman. A horse was brought to the door saddled, and without assistance she vaulted into the saddle and was away like the wind. While she was gone on a twenty mile ride I learned from members of her family that she has literally grown up on horseback. Her father is a wealthy farmer, and always has a number of horses on his well stocked farm. When she was less than a dozen years old she would go down into the fields, select her favorite lamb from the flock of sheep, and then manage in so unaccustomed a way to mount an unbroken colt, sans saddle, sans saddle, and come galloping back to the house with her pet in her arms, to the infinite terror of the rest of the household. Like most persons, he had read directions of what was necessary to be done in such emergencies, but unlike most persons, he was cool and collected enough to put the reading into practice when the emergency came.

The Economy of a Reformed Spelling.

From the London Truth.

It is calculated by the advocates of a reformed system of spelling that, by the adoption of the phonetic rule, there would be a saving to a writer of one hour and twenty minutes in a day of eight hours, or 400 hours in a year of 300 days. A small amount of literary matter in the Times newspaper, and an equal saving in the cost of new books. Over all departments of English literature it is calculated that there would be a saving of £10,000,000 annually.

Irish epitaphs form a distinct variety of the genus. They are rich, rare, and redundant of the laud of bulls and blunders.

Passing over that famous one which recites the virtues of the nobleman who was "father of modern chemistry" and grandfather of the Earl of Cork, I find the life of cholera morbus, caused by eating green fruit in the full hope of a blessed immortality at the early age of twenty years, 3 mos, and 16 days. Readier, perhaps not so well known, I give it untouched:

"Sacred to the memory of Lady Elizabeth O'Looney, first cousin to Burke, commonly called the sublime. She was bold, passionate and deeply religious. Also she painted in water-colors, and sent many pictures to the Great Exhibition, and died of cholera morbus, caused by eating green fruit in the full hope of a blessed immortality at the early age of twenty years, 3 mos, and 16 days. Readier, after more time, and with more care, I will add."

Since the race became a fixed event Miss Jewett has taken no general course of training, but has relied entirely upon her daily experiences since early childhood. "All I have asked," she remarked, "is as good horses as my opponent and a strong saddle; I will attend to the rest."

OTHER FELLOWS THINK SO TOO.

There's just one thing a man can have. In all this world of woe and strife, That makes the business not too bad, And the money not too hard to get, Don't fancy that I love my girl!

For rosy cheeks or raven hair? She holds my heart because she laughs—
B—cause she laughs, and doesn't care.

Put my boat just where it suits, And fit to where I want it to row, A chap can very seldom do, I leave my papers on my desk;

She never cleanliness in a heap, On winter nights my boy James—

Will warm her toes before the fire; She never scolds at the lamp, Won't let me sit up late at night, Or wants the wick a trifle higher, To light my pipe; I like to have a pipe, But with her roses I can't hang; Light my pipe just where I please,

To keep it warm, and don't care.

She's never cross with me, And she's never angry with me, The very one I want to k—e.

On winter nights my boy James—

FASHION NOTES.

From the New York Sun.

No wraps are worn at present.

Large collars and fichus are much worn.

Tea and coffee stained laces are much worn.

Pilgrim suits are destined to much popularity.

Large red chenille cords will be used in millinery.

Traveling suits of gray cheviot are in plaid style.

Jet and garnet will be used on dresses and bonnets.

Hoods or cowls appear on straight directory mantles.

Long directory mantles will be the fall wraps.

Suits are either very plain or much ruffled and draped.

Old India shawls are cut up to make trimmings for nuns' veiling costumes.

Woolen goods bordered on one selvage with stripes are a feature on fall goods.

The new metal ornaments for hats and bonnets are large and very handsomely finished.

Bonnets will be trimmed with long pile silk plush.

Strings of new bonnets are of plush lined with satin.

Plush and hairy felt hats and bonnets are among the first fall productions and imports.

Bags or reticules, carried on the arm or fastened to the waist, accompany all new costumes.

Long pile silk plush, in bright and dark colors, tipped with either white or old gold, will be much used in millinery.

Cloth of gold, embroidered with pearl, garnet and amber beads, appear among choice fall importations.

Confidures are not quite so low in the back as they have been, but the tendency is to plain and flat, not fluffy, hair dressing.

The richest evening and full-dress toilets are made more ornate with bead embroidery of jet, pearls, crystal, amber and garnet than ever.

Gold and silver brocaded stuffs for evening wear, as parts of costumes, are still further enriched with pearl and crystal embroideries.

A pretty sash to wear with a white costume can be made of white tulle reticule, finished at the ends with sections of India shawl patterns.

Large and finely finished clasps resembling cloak-clasps, but more ornate and jeweled, will be used to fasten the plush strings of bonnets.

A favorite combination of fall suits is couchman's drab for the principle part of the costume, with borders of shaded stripes of heliotrope and ophelia.

Large wide-spread, deeply-notched, director collar of silk, plush, satin and velvet are edged with ruffles of Languedoc lace and worn with any costume.

An Essay on Man.

Man was made in dry weather.

He was made of dust.

Quite a number have never recovered from their creation, they are still dry.

It is man's nature to be discontented. Adam had a monopoly; but he could not be happy without some one to crow over.

For a while he knocked around over the garden of Eden, and then went to the house; but he had to cook his own supper; there was no stove-wood chopped, and things were in a bad shape generally.

The next morning was the same way. He had to make his own bed and sweep out. His socks were dirty and his arm would run through a hole in his sleeve. So he was dissatisfied.

The next night when he went to sleep the Creator punished him by making one of his ribs into a woman—a great misfortune to the race.

It has been 6,000 years since the rib was lost, and yet men continues feeling for it.

This is a very feeling subject.

Pursuit in this case is said to be sweet-er than possession.

After Eve got acquainted with her mate she vowed that all the men in the world were not worth Adam.

Goliath was a man.

He was a bigger man than old Grant, but he could not stand so many slings.

It is natural for a man to disregard good example.

A son is a male who is ashamed of his sex, and attempts to conceal the fact that he is a man.

Conceit in such cases is attended with but little trouble. It is only necessary to part his hair in the middle.

The family man resembles an oyster on the half shell.

The shell is known at home, the soft side abroad.

Some men carry this resemblance in their faces. A great many men have countenances like oysters.

Job is said to have been a very patient man. He had boils all over himself when the preacher reaches thirtyninth on a hot summer day, and never thinks of the grandeur of Job's example.

MARYLAND'S SENATOR.

Incidents in the Life of Arthur P. Gorman, Maryland's New Senator.

Is going to the United States Senate Mr. Gorman will have the triumph of returning to that august body as a member which he once served as a page, a thing which never occurred before in the history of the Senate. He was born in Howard County—which he now represents in the State Senate—March 11, 1839. He does not belong to any one of the old Maryland families, for it was not till the year 1800 that his grandfather, John Gorman, came from Ireland to America, settling first in Pennsylvania, near Harrisburg, but afterwards removing to Baltimore. On his mother's side he is descended from the family of Samuel Brown, of English blood, who settled in this country before the Revolution, and took part in that war. Mr. Gorman's father, Peter Gorman, was a farmer and a large contractor on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad when it was building; was, moreover, an active politician and had a large acquaintance with public men. The Senator when a boy enjoyed only such educational advantages as the public schools of Howard County can supply, and at the early age of thirteen he was appointed a page in the Senate through the influence of Judge Edward Haanmond, then a member of the House of Representatives. The youth was bright, active and obliging, and attracted the notice of Stephen A. Douglas, of Illinois, who eventually made him his secretary and confidential friend. Young Gorman lived in the great Senator's house and accompanied him on all his electioneering tours, including the famous stamping tour against Lincoln when they were contesting the Illinois Senatorship. Mr. Gorman was familiar with all the political intrigues of that day; his reminiscences of the secret history of the split between Douglas and Breckinridge would make an interesting contribution to the history of National politics.—Baltimore American.

BITTERS

Defensive Medication

Is a preparation which should never be neglected

when flavor is wanted, and the tasteless experience of the Bitters of all the season is particularly desirable, especially for the feeble and sickly.

As a remedy for biliousness, dyspepsia, nervousness, and convulsions, it is nothing comparable to this wholesome restorative.

Coughs.

"Brown's Bronchial Troches" are used with advantage to alleviate COUGH, SORE THROAT, HOARSENESS and BRONCHIAL AFFECTIONS. For thirty years these Troches have been in use, with annually increasing favor. They are not new and untried, but, having been tested by wide and constant use for nearly an entire generation, they have attained well-merited rank among the few staple remedies of the age.

The THROAT.—"Brown's Bronchial Troches" act directly on the organs of the voice. They have an extraordinary effect in all disorders of the Throat and Larynx, restoring a healthy tone
when relaxed, either from cold or over-exertion of the voice, and produce a clear and distinct enunciation. Speakers and Singers find the Troches useful.

A COTTON CATHARIN or Sore Throat requires immediate attention, as neglect often results in some injurious Long Disease.
"Brown's Bronchial Troches" will almost invariably give relief. Imitations are offered for sale, many of which are injurious. The genuine "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are sold only in bottles.

FALL OF 1880.

TEACHER'S INSTITUTE

—AND—

EXAMINATIONS.

For Second District, Rock County.

The Annual Teachers' Institute will convene for a two weeks session at Milton, August 23, 1880, at 10 o'clock A. M. and close at 5 P. M.
Dr. C. W. Crosby, of the Rockford Public Schools, and here permit me to say that while Prof. Emery may be a new man to many of us, he is not new to the art of teaching, which he has practiced during the able education he has received in the State, and as an Institute conductor, he is considered to be the peer of any.

Under the direction of Prof. Emery, the Rockford Institute will succeed from the beginning, offering, making compositions, examinations and exercises, in English, French, Latin, History, Geography, Arithmetic, Penmanship, Drawing, etc., and will be conducted in the most interesting and instructive manner.

But remember, Teachers, there can be no Institute worthy the name, without your presence and support. Come forward, and let us all work together for the welfare of our schools.

The examinations will be held in the Institute,
or fair of school work, during the ensuing year;
and it is respectfully suggested and urged upon teachers to prepare with special reference to this end.

The display will consist of specimens in penmanship, lettering, mapmaking, compositions, examinations, etc., and the results will be used to show the efficiency and quality of the work done in the schools. This matter may be made the subject of more extended and detailed notice hereafter, but I will now call your attention to it. It is hoped that this purpose will meet your hearty approbation.

EXAMINATIONS.

Special Examinations will be held September 3rd and 4th.

Regular Examinations will be held as follows:

AT AFTON, Sept. 2nd and 3rd.

AT CLINTON, Oct. 5th and 6th.

AT MILTON, Oct. 2nd and 3rd.

Examinations will commence promptly at nine o'clock in each case.

The examinations in regard to transverse, renewals, and other contained in the Spring notices, will be rigidly adhered to. A cordial invitation to be present at both the Institute and examinations is extended to the public generally.

BRIEFLETS.

—It's no time for dry jokes about the weather.

—Go to Lappin's hall to-night and hear the Italian orchestra.

To-morrow is the fourteenth Sunday after Trinity. Well, what of it?

The Georgia Minstrels are booked for the Opera House September 23d and 24th.

—The shelving and counters are being put into place in Bennett's new block Preparatory to McKey & Bro., taking possession of the store.

—At the meeting of the T. M. C. A.
tomorrow afternoon, the new song composed by J. E. Sargent, "Meet me on that other side," is to be sung.

—There is to be a Republican rally at Orfordville, next Tuesday evening, and a Garfield and Arthur club organized. A. H.
Baxter is to address the meeting.

—Justice Brooks has had his court crowded with Miltonians in a civil suit for several days past, but in to-day resting, though the case has not been finished.

—To-night the First Methodist church folk have their usual song service and Bible study. Subject, "Abraham's Prayer."
Bibles and hymnals should be brought along.

—The sale of tickets for Lawrence Barrett will commence at Moseley's at 9 o'clock Monday morning. As there will be a lively demand, those who want first choice must fall into line early.

—By twist of the types the GAZETTE spoke last night about the militiamen having a sham battle at Rockford. There was no sham about my bottle there, except perhaps some stray champagne bot-

—The store on Main street next to Myer & Evanson's, has been cleaned up and rejuvenated, preparatory to its being occupied by Miss McCulloch and Mrs.
Keating as a millinery and dressmaking establishment.

—Charles Evans isn't making a very good record for himself here. He was on the first of July convicted of stealing a cigar holder, and sent to jail for forty days, and now he goes back to jail again for twenty-one days for vagrancy. Bad whisky and too much of it, seems to be the cause of his troubles.

—An enterprising youth has been selling lithographs of the presidential candidates for two shillings each, and has succeeded in working off quite a number.

A closer inspection shows that they are advertisements of some wonderful kind of soap, but then it takes soap to either sell pictures or run a campaign.

—One of the best bricklayers in the city, who is now at work on Myers' new block, keeps his hat off while at work, no matter how much of a strike the sun is on.

Yesterday, as on other extremely hot days, he stood at his work bareheaded, and seemed not at all affected by the heat. He isn't bald-headed though.

—Jo Cooks was wild again to-day, and first broke out by seizing a beer keg in front of Casey's saloon and pitching it over the screen at the door, demolishing a gas fixture and causing a general common. The Marshal gobbled him up, but had quite a tussle to get him locked up.

A few taps with a stick convinced him
"it was better as he go along," and in a few minutes he had his nose sticking through the bars of the quay.

—Jim Fain, the veteran, expected the other day to have the comb release him from having a guardian. All interested in the matter joined in the request that it should be done, as his pension money had been safely invested in a home for him and there was little else for him to spend. He felt so joyous at the prospect of release that he proceeded to get gloriously drunk, and now his wife has changed her mind, and her Jim will continue to have a guardian.

—J. J. McDonald complained of George B. Parker as a vagrant, and both parties appeared in the Police Court this morning. The defendant was rather too slightly dressed for a vagrant, and the appearance of both parties indicated that there was more behind the scenes. Mo-Donald testified that he first met Parker at Geneva Lake, and the latter was a poker player, but not of sufficient skill to be termed an artist. He had since met him here, and he never saw him work any.

Parker told his side of the story then.

The arrest was only a matter of spite. He played cards sometimes, but his business was railroading. He further declared that McDonald was bound to run him out of town because he wouldn't pay him money. He said he was afraid McDonald would assault him if he had raised a chair on him last night. Both sides being aired up the Justice concluded to discharge Parker.

STAY PROLONGED ONE DAY.

Dr. Frothingham will remain at the Myers hotel on Sunday, to-morrow, until 4 p. m., for the benefit of many who have been prevented from consulting him on account of the weather during the past week. The Doctor now has under-treatment 217 patients in Janesville.

He will visit as every month for one year, remaining one week each visit. No new patients will be taken next visit, as this time will be entirely devoted to the old ones, or those who take treatment

this time.

bound to run him out of town because he

HOME AGAIN.

The Return of the Militiamen Who Took in Rockford—An Enjoyable Camping Out.

Last evening the Guards and Rifles returned from Rockford, and with the Bower City Band marched down Milwaukee street to Main, and there separated, each company marching to its own armory, and the Band going to their rooms. All who participated in the encampment pronounce the affair an enjoyable one, despite the occasional rain. They went prepared for a good time, and they had some of the boys look a little heavy about the eyelids

as though there had been but little time wasted in sleep, and from the stories they spin about the lively doings of camp by night time, the reason is apparent. There was plenty of everything, plenty of fun,

plenty to eat, plenty of wetness, plenty of sun served up hot, and all came back

well satisfied.
